Economies Voted by House Threatened; Hatch Bill Laid Aside.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 11. — Exchanging one big issue for another, the senate appeared ready today to lay aside its squabble over the Hatch anti-politics law in order to take up a farm appropriations bill which virtually wipes out all the economies voted this year.

The swap was a prelude to one of the busiest weeks of the congressional session. In two or three days the senate will debate extension of the reciprocal trade program; the house will consider tomorrow the $655,000,000 naval expansion bill.

An armistice on the Hatch act fight was proposed Saturday after senators who want to broaden the law's provisions declared that opponents were filibustering. The question is whether state employes paid in part by federal funds should be barred from political activity, as are federal workers.

Rupublicans, who have kept silent during the battle between two Democratic factions, promised to support Hatch in demanding ultimate action.

The farm fight appeared a little more one-sided than the Hatch controversy, with economy advocates acknowledging that they had little chance of victory. Their only hope, they said, is that the house will refuse to agree to any senate increases.

SEVEN ARRESTED AS TRAFFIC OFFENDERS

One in Week-End List Here Fined for Drunken Driving.

Seven motorists were arrested by police and state patrolmen in Marion and vicinity over the week-end.

W. O. Thompson, 38, of Ostrander was arrested by city police early yesterday on a drunken driving charge. He pleaded guilty before Municipal Judge Hazen this morning and was fined $100 and costs. His driving rights were suspended for six months.

Officers said the Thompson car was zig-zagging on West Center street near Garden street at the time of the arrest.

Miss Edith Retterer, 42, of Harpster was arrested by State Patrolman W. C. Corder yesterday afternoon on a charge of failure to stop for a stop sign at the intersection of Route 23 and a county road three miles north of Marion. She was released under $9.70 bond to appear in municipal court this afternoon.

Earl West, 39, of 145 Lincoln avenue was arrested by Corp. W. D. Mariner of the state patrol on a charge of reckless driving on Route 4 north of Marion Saturday night. He entered a plea of guilty before Judge Hazen this morning and was fined $3 and costs. The officer charged the West car was speeding and cutting in and out of traffic.

Police arrested John Davis, 46,

Hundreds Attend Funeral Service for Thaxton Boy

Hundreds of men, women and children jammed the Agosta Methodist church yesterday afternoon for the funeral of Donald Thaxton, 9, whose body was found Thursday in the Scioto river near Agosta after a search which began Monday afternoon when he was swept from a boat.

A loud speaker was used to carry the service to the overflow crowd which filled the basement.

Preceding the service at 2 p. m. at the church there was a private family service at 1:30 at the home of the boy's grandfather, Emmanuel Hecker, who was with him and five other boys in the boat which was caught in rapid-running flood waters and dashed against a bridge about a mile and a half south of Agosta.

After the three-quarter hour service at the church, conducted by Rev. Erwin Bailey, pastor, the crowd was permitted to file past the casket. Miss Laura Elsele of near Agosta, the boy's school teacher, and Robert Everett of Agosta sang at both the home and church services. At the home Rev. Bailey offered prayer. Accompaniments for the songs were played by Miss Kathleen Bricker, the boy's Sunday school teacher.

The pallbearers were six classmates of Donald at the Agosta school, Leo Seiter, Donald James, Frank Bauer, John Thomas Schmidt, Alvin Tucker and Richard Tucker.

The five boys who were in the boat, Russell Morthland, Donald Tucker, Ward Chapman, Neil Chapman and Dick Persinger, sat together during the service.

The school bus in which Donald was a daily passenger to school made the regular rounds just before the service yesterday and took all the children along the route to the service. The regular driver, Wesley Harruff, made the trip.

The burial service was conducted at the Salem church cemetery on the Gracely road northeast of Agosta.

"INSPECTOR" ARRAIGNED AT UPPER SANDUSKY

William E. Cahill Denies Liquor Permit Charges.

Special to The Star

UPPER SANDUSKY, March 11. —William E. Cahill, 49, was arraigned here this morning before Judge Russell H. Kear on charges of posing as a state liquor inspector and receiving money in connection with the issuance of liquor permits. He pleaded not guilty and was remanded to the Wyandot county jail pending arrangements to furnish bond of $2,000. His trial was set for April 3.

He was arrested last week at Mansfield after an Upper Sandusky man reported a liquor permit transaction to Sheriff Harry Weatherholtz. He is accused of obtaining $18 each from George Wagner of Kirby and Pearl Darringer of Marseilles. Possibility that he extorted as much as $50,000 from permit holders, largely beer licenses, was expressed by Sheriff Weatherholtz.

Officers said he admitted having hotel suites in Columbus, Kenton and Mansfield and said his wife is living in Kenton.

ALLIES INFORM FINNS MORE HELP IS READY

Chamberlain Tells Commons Two Nations Will Send Aid When Requested.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, March 11 — Great Britain and France have informed Finland that they are ready "to proceed immediately and jointly to the help of Finland" with "all available resources" if the Finnish government should ask for "further aid," Prime Minister Chamberlain told the house of commons today.

Later a statement from his office said that "the prime minister desires to make it clear that no appeal for further aid has yet been received from the Finnish government."

Asked by Labor Leader Clement Attlee for a statement on the Russian - Finnish negotiations, Chamberlain said:

"The house will be aware that both the French and British government have sent and are continuing to send material assistance to Finland. This has been of considerable value to the Finnish forces.

Waiting Call from Finns

"As his majesty's government and the French government have already informed the Finnish government, they are prepared in response to an appeal from them for further aid to proceed immediately and jointly to the help of Finland, using all available resources at their disposal."

Asked if he could say anything regarding the question of settlement of the Russian-Finnish conflict, Chamberlain said; "I am afraid I have no information which is sufficiently reliable to give the house at the present moment."

As to whether further British-French help for Finland would be tantamount to going to war against Russia, Chamberlain said: "We have not arrived at that yet."

Chamberlain refused to answer a question whether Britain was "proposing to send troops to Finland," and "if so, are they preparing to violate the neutrality of Norway and Sweden in doing so."

Britain Rejected Role

Great Britain also was disclosed today to have refused to convey to Finland Soviet Russian "peace terms of an onerous nature" and thereafter Sweden became the go-between.

Russian Ambassador Ivan Maisky, it was said, approached R. A. Butler, foreign undersecretary, with the terms on Feb. 22.

Foreign office circles said they would have left Finland "helpless and defenseless" and the British government informed Finland later it had refused to act as intermediary.

Authoritative sources said similar terms were submitted to Sweden about the same time, and she conveyed them to Finland.

CONG. SMITH APPOINTED ON NEW SUBCOMMITTEE

Eighth District Congressman Frederick C. Smith of Marion has been appointed to a subcommittee of the conference on unemployment in congress. The Associated Press reported today from Washington. The conference is engaged in a study of national problems and their relation to unemployment.

Police Traffic Squad, New "Tag" Setup Urged In WPA Survey Report

SCORES of recommendations for changes in Marion's traffic setup, including creation of a police traffic squad, a consistent enforcement program and establishment of a new "ticket" system, highlight the report of the recently completed WPA traffic survey, received today by city officials.

The report, containing some 60 pages, covers in detail the studies made by a large crew of WPA workers here late in 1939. City officials, who have long been awaiting completion of the report, said they will go over it thoroughly.

City council has been holding up action on several proposed revisions of the traffic code pending completion of the survey, which is designed as a guide in future traffic planning.

In the next few days, The Star will publish a series of detailed stories on various aspects of the survey report. The main features and recommendations are reviewed in today's story.

The project, which employed as many as 125 persons at times, was carried on at a cost of $14,500 of which the city paid $600 for materials and supplies and the federal government $13,900 for labor. William J. Knight of Columbus, director of traffic surveys for this WPA district, had charge. In all 230 man-months of work were needed to complete the project.

One-hundred copies of the report were printed, 20 going to WPA and the rest to the city Safety-Service Director Clyde C. Caldwell has listed the following distribution: mayor, safety-service director, all councilmen, two for the City library, six for the Auto club, seven for the Chamber of Commerce, four for the Junior Chamber, eight for city schools and two or four for parochial schools, police and fire chief, county commissioners, county and city engineers, sheriff, county board of education, The Star and possibly others.

The report is neatly bound, the work all having been done by WPA workers, even to the binding. Printing of the cover was done commercially in Marion.

The main recommendations in the report are:

General—Establishment of a comprehensive future planning program to include a "main thoroughfare survey" based on an estimate of growth of the community over a period of years. Consideration of a future program of grade crossing eliminations on arterial streets. A program of street widening.

Police—No let-down in enforcement of traffic laws, but a "consistent policy of enforcement of all regulations." Organization of a traffic squad of active men under capable supervision and large enough to enforce laws consistently. Assignment of motorcycle men for duty in peak hours and hazardous hours. Provision for compilation of adequate and accurate records. Discontinuance of the practice of escorting funerals for funeral directors. Establishment of a system whereby records can be checked for previous offenses by persons, thus making increased penalties possible.

Traffic Tickets — Abolition of the present "ticket and stub" type of violation notice and use of a triplicate form which will contain provisions for waiver of court rights and for pleading guilty. The city auditor would make a periodic audit to account for every ticket issued. The auditor would issue the tickets to the police by serial number. A record of names of offenders should be kept by the court so that second and third offenders could be identified and increased penalties be inflicted. That warrants be served as rapidly as possible on persons who fail to answer tickets.

A survey of tickets issued in 1938, shows the following:: 442 issued; 109 or 38.3 per cent paid; 107 or 24.3 per cent cancelled by officials; 165 or 37.4 per cent suspended by the court; one pending.

Courts—That the court adopt a policy of punishment where guilt is determined. That the power of suspension of sentences be exercised only where mitigating circumstances are definitely established. That fines be paid or amply secured before the violator is released. That consideration be given to the type of violation.

Traffic code—The report states the present code does not meet modern needs and should be revised to conform with model federal codes.

Routes—Establishment of by-pass routes around the business district for transient trucks and also for transient passenger vehicles.

Parking—Establishment of parallel parking on Main and Center streets uptown. One-hour time limits from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m. on Center from High to Leader, on Main from Church to Mill. Other downtown streets two hours as at present.

Commercial parking—No double parking or parking with rear wheels to curb by commercial vehicles between 8 a. m. and 6 p. m. in the central business district, except on Sundays and holi-

HITLER'S ENVOY CALLS ON POPE

Fuehrer Reported Anxious To Improve Relations with Vatican.

By The Associated Press

ROME, March 11—Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop of Germany visited Pope Pius XII today after an audience with King Vittorio Emanuele.

Further political conversations with Premier Mussolini were to follow later in a day of intense activity which observers found to indicate two things:

1. Adolf Hitler is making a friendly gesture toward the Vatican.

2. He is seeking Italy's views on the possibility of an extension of the European war either by the British-French allies or Germany herself.

Von Ribbentrop was received at the Vatican with full honors accorded foreign ministers.

He talked with the Pope for an hour in German which the Pontiff speaks fluently.

Since nothing was known of the nature of Von Ribbentrop's talk with Mussolini yesterday, Foreign reports that they concerned themselves with a guarantee of Finland's frontiers if Helsinki accepted Russian peace terms lacked confirmation.

But authoritative Fascists said that if a proposal for the joint guarantee were made, it was out of the question for Italy to become a guarantor because of geographical difficulties.

Von Ribbentrop and the Pope were believed to have discussed reports of seizures of church property, closing of many churches and, alleged mistreatment of clerics and lay Catholics and German-occupied territories.

Liberal credence was given in foreign circles to rumors that Hitler seeks revision of the German concordat with the Vatican.

Giovanni Ansaldo, in Il Telegrafo of Leghorn, Foreign Minister Count Ciano's newspaper, wrote that the German emissary was too wise to ask Il duce to change Italy's non-belligerent status and would recognize her "absolute liberty of action and decision."

More Than 400 Hear Dr. Sachar At Closing Community Forum Session

Chicago Historian-Biographer Compares "Isms" and Democracy; Discusses Future of Germany.

The Marion Community Forum association closed its second season of "Town Hall" programs yesterday afternoon with a discussion of current international affairs and their possible effect on civilization during the next few decades. More than 400 persons attended the program, held at Edison Junior High school.

Dr. Abram Leon Sachar Chicago, historian and biographer, was guest speaker and discussion leader.

Speaking on the subject, "The Four Roads to Security," Dr. Sachar compared the philosophies and practices of communism, fascism, nazism and democracy and drew the conclusion that while all four systems promised security only the security of democracy is real since it is the only system based on personal liberty and law.

During the discussion period following his talk Dr. Sachar was asked what he believed would happen to Germany after the war and he discussed three alternative developments. In the event of a German victory, totalitarianism would remain in a modified form and probably would spread throughout Europe, he said.

If Germany is defeated, however, Dr. Sachar said he believed one of two things would happen to the present German regime. Either the allies will destroy the present Nazi leadership and replace it with conservative democrats or else the liberal, socialist members of the Nazi party will gain control of the country and eliminate the Fascist elements, he predicted.

Thinks Fast Surrender

Asked by one of the audience whether he believed Russia and Germany [illegible] a separate peace, Dr. Sachar said he thought [illegible]

G.O.P. FINISHING FARM STUDIES

Report Likely To Form Basis for Party's Agriculture Platform.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 11. — House farm state Republicans are winding up studies and writing reports which may be the backbone of next year's agricultural legislative program if the party gets back into power.

The agricultural study program, which sets a precendent for large-scale investigation of an economic problem by a house group of one party, in under the direction of a 44-member committee on agriculture.

Its chairman is Representative Hope (R-Kan). As ranking minority members of the house agriculture committee he will be in line for the chairmanship if the party wins a house majority in the November election.

Many Subjects Covered

Special subcommittees are studying irrigation and reclamation, sugar, farm chemurgy, soil conservation, fruits, vegetables, tobacco, cotton, farm credit, wool, wheat, corn and hogs, livestock and meats, potatoes; marketing, processing and cost of production, foreign export and import trade; dairying, poultry and eggs.

General committee members have heard working farmers and technical experts expound their views on pieces of the farm problem at a number of hearings.

Their preponderance of opinion expressed, Hope said today, favored some kind of a farm program rather than a return to laissez faire.

"Witnesses favored continuation of some features of the present

More Than 500 Seek Census Jobs in Eighth District

More than 500 persons have applied for the once-every-ten-years jobs as census enumerators in the Eighth congressional district, L. A. Glosser of Upper Sandusky, assistant supervisor, reported today.

Personal interviews are being granted to all applicants, so that the list can be whittled down later on when the number of jobs available is actually known.

Examinations will be given to about one and a half times as many applicants as there are jobs. Applicants from Marion, Morrow and Hardin counties will take their tests here and those from Wyandot, Crawford and Hancock counties will be examined at Upper Sandusky. Dates for examinations have not been set.

Mostly for Democrats

Few if any of the jobs as enumerators will go to Republicans, since the Democrats are holding the patronage reins in Washington.

The number of applicants by counties: Marion 100, Morrow 47, Wyandot 45, Crawford 50, Hardin 50, and Hancock about 200.

Mr. Glosser, who is assistant to Mrs. Harriet B. Stuart of Bucyrus, supervisor, estimated 40 or more enumerators will be needed for Marion and vicinity.

The population and agricultural surveys which will be conducted by the enumerators will start April 1. It is expected the population count will be finished in about two weeks and the farm census in about a month. The housing census if funds are granted by congress may take about a week in addition.

Tentative Time Schedule

Mr. Glosser expects all the counting of noses and other items to be finished in the district early in May. The office here will then make unofficial counts of population and the number of farms and announce them to the public. Official and more detailed reports will come from Washington later.

The business and manufacturing census started Jan. 2.

DIE FEW HOURS AFTER MISHAP IN NORTH SIDE

Injuries Fatal to Mr. and Mrs. Harry F. Armintrout; Other Driver Slightly Hurt.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry F. Armintrout of 343 Ballentine avenue died at City hospital Saturday night a few hours after the car in which they were riding figured in a collision at East Mark and Jefferson streets.

Mrs. Armintrout, 38, died at 5 o'clock while Mr. Armintrout, 34, died at 11:50, hospital attendants reported. Neither fully regained consciousness after the accident.

The physician attending the couple at the hospital said Mr. Armintrout's injuries included a skull fracture, face lacerations and internal injuries and that Mrs. Armintrout suffered fractures of several ribs, a punctured lung and severe shock. Virtually no hope was held for their recovery from the time of the accident which occurred about 12:30 p. m. Saturday.

A double funeral service will be held Wednesday afternoon.

Delbert Gregory, 21, of near Nevada, driver of the other car involved in the accident escaped with minor knee abrasions. He was treated at the hospital and released.

The accident occurred while the Armintrout car, driven by Mr. Armintrout, was eastbound on Mark and the Gregory car was northbound on Jefferson street.

Side Caved In

The Gregory car apparently struck the Armintrout car, a sedan, between the front and rear doors on the right side, caving in the entire right side of the riding compartment, police reports show. The Armintrout car then crashed into a utility pole at the northeast corner of the intersection, which crushed the left side of the body.

The impacts with the Gregory car and the pole broke off the back of the front seat in which Mr. and Mrs. Armintrout were riding and hurled the couple into the rear seat, those first to arrive at the accident scene said.

Officials said that apparently the impacts were very hard, since Mrs. Armintrout's shoes were found on the floor beneath the front seat indicating that she was literally lifted out of her shoes. A door handle broken off the Armintrout car was impaled more than two inches in the wooden utility pole.

Gregory told Police Captain E. C. Meeker, Patrolman Henry Tong and Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Walter D. Moore, who investigated, that he did not see the Armintrout car approaching and that apparently Mr. Armintrout did not see his car. Witnesses told the officials that neither car slackened speed and that apparently neither driver saw the other.

House Blocks View

The officials said an examination of the scene of the accident disclosed that it would be almost impossible for cars traveling east and north, as the Gregory and Armintrout autos were, to be seen approaching the intersection since a house at the southwest corner obstructs the view of northbound and eastbound motorists. There are no stop signs or other traffic controls at the intersection.

Neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Armintrout said they saw them leave their home a few minutes before the mishhap and that they had mentioned earlier in the day that they were going to visit Mr. Armintrout's mother. Apparently they were on their way to the home of a daughter, Mrs. Edward Moon of 210 Neil avenue, and were planning to go from the Moon home, members of the family said.

Mr. Armintrout, a blacksmith at the Marion Steam Shovel Co. over a period of 27 years, came here with his wife 23 years ago. They formerly lived in Mt. Victory.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Armintrout were members of Greenwood Evangelical church.

List of Survivors

They are survived by two children, Mrs. Moon of Neil avenue and Mrs. Harold Ray of West Mansfield; and one grandchild.

Mrs. Armintrout also leaves four sisters, Mrs. Etta Green of

An Easter Feast To Welcome Spring

Here's a cake that speaks for itself—you know it's good, by its looks, and the nests of eggs spell Easter.

* * *

EASTER EGG CAKE

2¼ cups sifted cake flour, 2½ teaspoons double-acting baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup butter or other shortening, 1½ cups sugar, 8 egg yolks, ⅔ cup milk, ½ teaspoon lemon extract.

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Cream butter, add sugar gradually, and cream together until fluffy. Beat egg yolks thoroughly with rotary egg beater until light colored and thick enough to fall from beater in continuous stream. Add to creamed mixture and beat until almost waxy. Add flour, alternately with milk, a little at a time, beating thoroughly after each addition. When all flour is added, beat thoroughly again. Add lemon extract. Bake in three greased 9-inch layer pans in moderate oven (375° F.) 18 to 20 minutes. Spread Pineapple Filling between layers and Seven Minute Frosting, tinted a delicate yellow, on top and sides of cake. Tint ½ cup moist, sweetened coconut a delicate green. Arrange five small coconut nests around top of cake; fill centers with Jordan almonds or jelly beans.

PINEAPPLE FILLING

½ cup sugar, 2 tablespoons cornstarch, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ cup water, ½ cup pineapple juice, ½ cup drained crushed pineapple, 2 teaspoons lemon juice, 2 teaspoons butter, ½ cup sweetened coconut.

Associated Press Writer

Put springtime magic into the family's Easter Sunday dinner.

Mark the advent of this joyous season by using Easter motifs in name cards, decorations and on the menu.

The children will love to make the name cards for you. Here's a way to make them:

Save egg shells for several days and dye them in different colors. Dry the shells and paste them onto yellow cardboard cut into large egg shapes. Write the names on the cards and fill the little cups with candy eggs.

* * *

Here's a streamlined table decoration that is effective and easy: Place a glass reflector or a large mirror in the center of the table. Outline it with grass and small flowers. (Go to the woods for the first violets, buttercups and spring beauties, or buy a few daffodils, jonquils and tulips from the florist.) Set fluffy fur or cotton ducks "swimming" on the pond.

* * *

Easter, 1940, goes very spring-like with this refreshing appetizer for the dinner. Mould orange gelatin into individual moulds (or cut out with a doughnut cutter from a sheet of congealed gelatin). Turn them out on shredded lettuce and fill the nests with chilled balls of pineapple, avocados and peaches. Sprinkle with finely-chopped mint-flavored gum drops (or fresh mint) and pass French dressing.

* * *

If ham is your meat choice for this dinner, give a jaunty new topper. When the ham is cooked, discard the excess fat. Score the fat side with a knife and stud it with cloves, then cover with 1 cup orange marmalade, mixed with ½ cup honey, 1-3 cup brown sugar, 1 teaspoon each of cinnamon and cloves, 2 tablespoons lemon juice and ½ cup vinegar. Bake 30 minutes in a moderate hot oven. Baste with the drippings. Surround the ham with chicks cut from boiled sliced sweet potatoes which have been heated and well seasoned.

* * *

Spinach ring, filled with potato balls rolled in chopped parsley and grated cheese is a fitting accompaniment for any meat or fowl. Pass a cream sauce, with chopped mushrooms in it. Or you may prefer "nest" of green beans with "eggs" of sweet potato balls with some chopped pecans inside.

* * *

For a glamorous Easter dessert try Frozen Surprise. It caps the climax for this gay repast. Fill individual sponge cakes (hollowed out of course) with vanilla ice cream. Cover with whipped cream that has dried marshmallows, grated sweet chocolate and toasted almonds in it. Sprinkle lightly with cocoanut in various colors, all mixed together.

* * *

If you want a gelatin dessert, shape a fruit mixture in a ring mould. Unmould on a round of sponge or angel food cake. Fill the center with orange sherbet balls (if not possible to shape the sherbet, pile it roughly in the center). Outline with shredded gum drop strings.

An Old Question — What To Do with Leftovers

Dear Friends in Marion: What question does a cooking school lecturer hear most frequently? The answer to that is easy—and difficult; that is, difficult to solve the problem in the limited time at cooking school.

The familiar, age-old question is: "Please give me a good recipe for leftovers," or "How can I serve leftovers attractively, so my family will not recognize them?"

This question cannot be disposed of in five minutes, any more than a busy homemaker can track down a tempting recipe in that time, which will utilize the precise foods she has on hand. Even with the many recipe books and suggestions in newspapers and magazines, a search for a recipe to disguise a few carrots, fewer cooked peas and a pork chop calls for a Madame Sherlock Holmes.

The fortunate homemaker who "cooks by ear," or by instinct, has hunches about these odds and ends of food, and she contrives to use them ingeniously without any seeming plan. Vegetable juices go into a covered jar for soups, stews, and certain oven casserole dishes, and leftover vegetables go into many of these same dishes. The addition of seasonings and sauces, and a topping of grated cheese often is the difference between a triumph and an uninteresting main dish.

Helpful Suggestions

While it is a waste of time to try to give any specific recipe, certain basic helpful rules can be suggested which will utilize leftovers and yet serve them in appetizing disguise. The precise adaptation of these suggestions must be left to the cook, who knows her family's tastes.

Suppose the refrigerator has some of these items, in varying quantities: A few peas, beans, potatoes, beets, celery, onions cooked; several spoonfuls of corn, a bit of fish, some liver, tongue or sausage, one veal chop, a fragment of ham, cheese or macaroni, and so on. Combinations of these items may be used in the following ways:

1. Chop or grind and mix with mayonnaise. Use for sandwich fillings in the lunch-box, or for a hot luncheon dish, saute the sandwiches in shortening in a shallow frying utensil. Hot filled sandwiches.

2. Grind the leftovers and fry in hot shortening, calling the mixture hash. Celery and parsley will be helpful, with other seasonings. If mixture is dry, bind with an egg, a few drops of cream, or melter butter.

3. With a medium white sauce, combine the leftovers, letting them stand until firm. Mold to shapes, dip in powdered crumbs and fry in shallow shortening, calling the dish croquettes. (Popular disguise with the family.)

4. All leftovers of vegetables and meat may be combined and stirred into a medium white sauce. Pour into a buttered casserole, sprinkle with grated cheese, or buttered crumbs, and call the dish a scallop.

5. Combine all leftovers add milk, butter, seasonings, thicken slightly, and call the dish a creamed soup.

6. Meats or fish may be diced with vegetables. Add mayonnaise or French dressing and serve on lettuce; call the dish a main meal salad. If needed, round out the dish with hard-cooked eggs, and a garnish of olives and cheese.

Must Suit Preferences

The homemaker must determine the exact type of dish needed to round out the meal. She also knows whether her family prefers soup, sandwich, hot scalloped dish, salad, croquettes or hash.

Remember that a smooth creamy white sauce will work wonders in many dishes. Even the most critical members of the family won't be able to make that discouraging discovery, "Aw, these are only the old peas and beans we didn't eat up last night."

Cooking school has encouraged French-frying, by proving that it is simple, inexpensive, practical—and that foods thus cooked are digestible when pure ingredients are used correctly. No family will turn down golden-brown croquettes, with a white sauce base; neither will they trace the ancestry of the balance of the filling. After all the frying method is easiest, and with leftovers, it actually seems to recover some of the lost flavors of the foods previously cooked.

One practical warning: Don't expect too much from a few leftovers, and don't spend more time and valuable material than they justify. In other words, don't spend fifty cents' worth of new material to utilize a left-over valued at eight cents!

Recipes for Lenten Dishes

Baked Macaroni

Baked macaroni and cheese is one of the Lenten favorites. This nourishing recipe is gleaned from the new follow-up service of aluminum manufacturers, who now are telling homemakers just how to use their product. This recipe utilizes the four-quart sauce pot and the shiny oven casserole.

Two cups elbow macaroni, three tablespoons butter, five tablespoons flour, one teaspoon salt, one and one-half cups milk, one-fourth pound grated cheese.

Cook macaroni in boiling salted water in four-quart sauce pot until tender (about 10 minutes); rince with cold water and drain. Melt butter in sauce pan; remove from heat; stir in flour and salt; add one-half cup milk and blend; add remaining milk and stir together. Place over medium low heat and cook until bubbly, stirring constantly. Add macaroni; mix well.

Butter casserole; place a layer of the macaroni mixture in the bottom, sprinkle with one-half of cheese. Put in another layer of macaroni and top with remaining cheese. Cover and bake in moderate oven, 400 degrees, 20 minutes.

Mint Pears

Delicious with macaroni and cheese, and with many meat dishes is this easily-made treat: One No. 2½ can pears, one package cream cheese, mint jelly, maraschino cherries.

Place pears cut side up in shallow baking pan, with a small amount of the syrup. Fill each cavity with cream cheese. Bake 15 minutes in moderate oven, 400 degrees; baste twice during baking. To serve, top cheese with mint jelly and center with cherry.

Fish Pudding

One pound fillet of haddock, one and one-half teaspoons salt, one and one-half teaspoons flour, one-fourth teaspoon each pepper and nutmeg, one and three-fourths cups milk, three tablespoons melted butter.

Wash fillets and dry thoroughly with cloth. Cut in small pieces and put through meat grinder, using the finest knife. Add salt, flour, nutmeg and pepper mixture to fish and put through grinder six times. Add milk carefully, stirring until well blended. Stir in melted butter. Pour in buttered baking utensil and bake in moderate oven, 375 degrees, 30 to 35 minutes or until firm. Serve with melted butter or any desired sauce. This recipe is popular in Norway.

Chocolate Crunch Cookies

One-half cup shortening, one-half teaspoon each salt and vanilla, one-fourth cup granulated sugar, one-half cup brown sugar, firmly packed, one egg, beaten, one-fourth teaspoon soda, one cup sifted flour, one seven-ounce bar semi-sweet chocolate, cut in large pieces, one-half cup nuts, cut.

Combine shortening, salt and vanilla. Add sugars gradually and cream well. Add egg and beat well. Sift soda with flour. Add flour to creamed mixture and mix well. Add chocolate and nuts and blend.

Drop from tablespoon on baking sheets rubbed with shortening. Bake in moderate oven, 375 degrees, 12 minutes. This popular Cooking School recipe makes 3 dozen popular cookies.

The custom of English parents selling their children to the Irish for slaves was prohibited by King Canute about 1017.

ABOUT ANYTHING

In and Around Marion

Praise for Street Cleaners

The city service department and its chief, Clyde C. Caldwell, are due a belated bouquet for the street cleaning work done this winter, the writer feels.

In the opinion of a lot of uptown folks the department has functioned as nobly this winter as ever in its history—and in the teeth of the worst weather the city has experienced in at least four years.

Remarking to a city employe about the splendid service the department has given, the employe replied: "Well, it's certainly good to hear that. About all we ever hear are complaints from delegations about something or other that's wrong with the way the city's run."

So, here are printed posies for the work done spreading ashes and salt, shoveling intersections and curbings clear, flushing the streets and running the snowplow up and down the thoroughfares, to make the city's traffic problem less a nightmare through a siege of snow and ice.

Choosing a Party

Election board officials here are pondering the case of a prospective candidate who took out petitions for sheriff not long ago. The candidate, as a matter of routine legal procedure, was asked on which ticket he would run, Democrat or Republican.

He thought a while and said he guessed he would take the Democrats this time.

Veteran Trucker

Thirty-five years in the trucking business in Marion is the record of A. L. Wood of 133 Pennsylvania avenue, veteran truckman. It was just 35 years ago today, he recalls that he started business with a one horse dray. Not many streets in Marion and one of the alleys were paved at that time and much of the business was all day hauls. Business in the city included the transferring of trunks and sample cases belonging to traveling salesmen from the depot to hotels and stores, and there was considerable business in the way of transporting produce, Mr. Wood recalls. One of the major problems he encountered when it came to moving household goods was the old fashioned square piano.

Mr. Wood believes there is no one in the draying business here today who was in business when he started. With the increase in business Mr. Wood expanded his equipment to include two horses and wagons, and about 15 years ago abandoned these for trucks.

Picturesque Language

We think that the Aviation Booster, a rival in the publishing field, indulges in the most vivid language of any periodical in Marion. Aviation terms are combined with humor to give the Booster a flavor all its own.

For example, where most of us would write (if we wrote anything about it) that three committeemen were unable to attend a meeting of the air show planners, The Booster says this:

"The story goes that some time ago a meeting was called at the Jaycee club room and in due time most of our members were there. However, ceiling and visibility was zero that night and three of our boys got lost in the wilds of the uptown district. After wandering around for hours, being kicked out of one stairway after another, lo and behold, away off on the horizon there was a light. Turning on full power, our heroes made for this friendly beacon which turned out to be one of the town's local nite spots. After checking maps, wind drift, compass course, etc., at this place they finally made their weary way homeward and at this writing one of our members has not attended any of the subsequent meetings."

Once in a while the editor inserts a Confucius Say blurb. The latest: "Aviator who ascend too rapidly descend before ready."

The editor signed the last issue with a drawing of his plane and license number.

In a recent issue appeared a cartoon of a brave pilot floating to earth under a parachute. The cartoon caption: "It don't mean a thing if you don't pull that string."

A recent issue was closed with the advice: "In closing, remember to warm up your engine properly before taking off. Be considerate. You might mess up some one's garden."

THEY'RE OFF—on the mile-long Mt. Van Hoevenberg run at Lake Placid, N. Y. with "Bucky" Wells driving. Fifteen breath-taking turns to go. Fifteen chances to taste the supreme thrills of speed. But in smoking it's different. "It's slow burning that makes a cigarette tick with me," "Bucky" says. And he means what he says, because he's smoked slow-burning Camels for ten years.

"ONE-TWO-BOB! ONE-TWO-BOB!" As the crew bobs, "Bucky" picks up speed . . . 60—70—80 miles an hour, driving high on the wall of ice as he swings the quarter-ton steel sled around the curve. But in cigarettes, this daring speedster gives the laurels to slow-burning Camels. You can tell by their mild, mellow taste that Camels burn cooler, slower—and scientists have confirmed this: Camels burned slowest of all in recent tests. (See panel below.)

"I know that Camels burn slower," "Bucky" says. "There's cool comfort in a slow-burning Camel. Mildness—more flavor. Every puff is a fresh treat to the taste, and—get this—there are many more puffs to enjoy in a Camel. Slow burning means extra smoking. 'I'd walk a mile for a . . . .'"

Even if a gust of wind did carry away "Bucky's" last word, not many people would fail to realize it was C-A-M-E-L. Camels are made from costlier tobaccos—drawn from the greatest treasure of mellowed tobaccos ever brought together in one place in the whole world.

Leap Before You Look

By Peggy O'More

YESTERDAY: At Abe's suggestion Tomi advertises for a ranacultural. A young man named Pierre Prudhomme arrives without writing just as Allen is giving a party for Tomi.

• • •

CHAPTER 12
"A Man For You"

WHEN Pierre appeared with Lily. He had discarded his coat and tie, and someone had wrapped his head in a brigand's scarlet kerchief. Tomi marveled at the ease with which he had adapted himself to the group.

"Miss Mankin tells me she was rude to you the first time you met, and now she wants to apologize," he said.

And again Tomi must comply, graciously. "I wasn't exactly friendly," she conceded

Lily smiled and Tomi discovered a most provocative dimple. The girl was pretty. She wanted to like her.

"Weren't we funny?" she asked, laughing, and Tomi suddenly saw the ridiculous side of their meeting.

"I had you pictured as a dried-up spinster," Lily explained, "and here you turned out to be young and pretty. You were an awful disappointment."

Tomi laughed with her. "Timothy was my great-uncle, you know."

And then the crowd descended upon them.

"This will never do," cried a red-head called Myrtle. "You must have smut on your face before you are branded as one of the gang. Come on and turn the pork chops."

Tomi turned pork chops, eyes red with smoke from the open fireplace, hair tousled from the low-hanging cedar boughs. There was smut on her face and grease stains on her new frock, but she was happy. She had never been so happy.

The crowd liked her. She could tell by the way they teased her, scolded her, and ordered her around. When they had settled around the pit for lunch, they included her in their future plans.

"We'll have to find a man for you," decided Myrtle.

"She has one!" Bartell spoke with a finality that caused Tomi's breath to catch. He was looking at her as though he detested her. Surely he didn't think she knew Prudhomme well enough to single him out.

"He's one fellow," Bartell went on, "who is going to handle her as she needs to be handled. He'll knock that temper out of her if he has to use a belaying pin. And when he's through with his disciplining, she'll sit up and beg."

Tomi looked at Bartell and hated him anew. There he sat, sun shining down on him as though it had been made for the sole purpose of bringing out the highlights in his hair, the bronze of his skin, the fiendish glints in his eyes, and to illuminate that slow, lazy smile. Then she looked at Prudhomme and was surprised at what she saw. There was nothing impersonal in that glance. It was grave, serious, considering.

The crowd waited. Tomi elevated a bun with a pork chop protruding at a rakish angle. "If this fellow has a sister, see if she'll take you in hand," she suggested

While the group hooted at Bartell, Tomi enjoyed her sandwich, sand, cinders and cedar needles Nothing had ever tasted as delicious

"My dear," Myrtle swooped down on her, "you're going dancing with us tonight. You're too good to lose. Imagine any girl holding her own with Allen' Pierre, you can be my man for the evening, and I'll lend Jack to Tomi."

Pierre sprang to his feet and hurried to Tomi. "But, if Miss Toland will be so kind—"

Tomi flashed him a look of gratitude and turned to Myrtle "That's sweet of you, dear, but I'm so poor at returning anything I borrow."

And on this high note of laughter Tomi returned to the farm.

'Stern Parent'

Abe liked Prudhomme. He was as enthusiastic as his lack of teeth would allow. "I tell you, Miss Tomi, I wouldn't put it past him to grow us a five-legged frog."

"Quints or nothing," agreed Tomi, and fled upstairs

What should she wear? Tomi tried on each frock she had purchased, while Abe waited at the foot of the stairs to pass judgment.

She was wearing pink tulle over American beauty taffeta when Allen appeared.

"You look like the pink stuff they sell at the circus," he said.

Tomi stiffened.

"Oh, I didn't mean lemonade," he corrected. "I meant the stuff that looks like spun sugar. And if it will help you any, the girls are wearing semi-formals tonight. Myrtle said to tell you," he added hastily.

"Is that what inspired this visit?" Tomi inquired.

Allen waited until Old Abe, sensing a storm brewing, shuffled out of the house.

"No, it isn't. What is this Prudhomme person?"

Tomi's cheeks were as pink as her frock. "And may I ask if you've suddenly assumed the role of the stern parent?"

Bartell sank into a chair, his long frame folding like a jackknife. "Someone should," he grumbled. "Personally, I don't believe he's the old friend he says he is, or he'd call you Tomi, instead of Mees Toland," he mimicked.

"I had an accent like that until Great-aunt Hannah whipped it out of me with a maple switch," Tomi flashed.

"I'm sorry," and for the first time he sounded sorry. "It's just—well, don't you see, Tomi, this isn't the day and age to go off with a man you don't know. I promised old Timothy I'd look after you like a—"

"Like a mother," supplied Tomi, who had softened at his evidence of concern, then winced as he'd attributed it to a promise given her great-uncle.

"Are you trying to tell me you suspect Pierre of dire motives?" she asked.

"No. After all, we do belong to the same fraternity. He wouldn't have let me in on that if he couldn't stand having his past record checked. But—" he looked at Tomi with a boyish grin—"to break down and admit the truth, I'd planned on taking you myself."

Tomi didn't understand the sudden rage which shook her. "Your new car will carry three, won't it?" she asked. "And without mussing either Lily's or my frock."

Bartell stood up abruptly. "I've been waiting for that, and I believe I will ask Lily. She doesn't scratch when you try to be nice to her."

He was gone suddenly, the door banging behind him. Tomi's door also banged as she went in to don a house dress, preparatory to fixing Abe's dinner.

Tomi dressed for the dance with unusual care She reveled in donning clothes without the feminine members of the Toland family sitting around, criticizing every move. She also missed their caustic remarks; wondered why they didn't write and if they were never going to.

Slipping into a pale yellow frock, its only claim to distinction being its lines and the flat white jonquils appliqued to the shoulder and cascading down the full skirt, she thought it a bit ridiculous to take such care. After all, she was dining and dancing with a man she expected to hire. Wouldn't Great-Aunt Hannah throw a fit at such demoerscy in a Toland?

Angry Heart

Her prospective employe called in a cab at the appointed hour He looked distinguished in his dinner clothes.

"You have a French woman's flair for the right ensemble," he complimented

The Alameda, where the dinner dance was to be held, was the antithesis of the hotels Tomi had known. It was a low, Spanish structure, rambling in a half moon about a velvet lawn studded with palms and magnolias. Inside, it was built about a glassed patio where a fountain and pool ridiculed the idea of its being a commercial institution.

Most of the crowd had gathered, but Tomi was there in time to see Lily's triumphant arrival. She clung to Allen's arm "as though she were afraid some one would snatch him from under," scoffed Tomi.

They dined, and they danced. Pierre—she might as well call him that; every one else seemed to—danced perfectly. She felt she could dance with him forever, give herself up to the joy of rhythm and music.

She danced with others, then, somehow, found Bartell pushing them away.

She couldn't criticize his dancing that is his footwork, but there was something wrong. She couldn't hear the music for the thudding of her angry heart Angry, because she must go the way he directed. And she was confusingly aware of his arms, of the lazy, teasing smile he sent down when she dared to look up.

Sometimes she was afraid the music would never stop. And sometimes she was afraid it would stop too soon. And then it did, and Bartell, escorting her back to the table, thanked Prudhomme, for the dance.

"The—the conceited prig," she murmured And, to Pierre's attentive, "I beg your pardon," she said; "Mr Bartell seems so very sure of himself."

"But, of course," agreed Prudhomme, with exaggerated nonchalance "I am told he is the most successful young attorney in this community; specializes in estates and in the drawing of wills That Miss Toland," should make you feel very secure."

It made her feel very insecure. Tomi's worries descended in a cloud, cutting her off from the gayety of the party When Bartell, a protesting Lily clinging to him, paused at their table to say goodnight, she was sure he was up to some mischief directed at her.

Lily's words confirmed her fear. The little blonde pouted prettily as Prudhomme, "Allen has some silly old business to attend to, so I have to go home."

Lily had made this a challenge to Prudhomme, but he didn't accept it He merely bowed and expressed his sympathy

Tomi found the party increasingly drab She wondered if she had taken cold. Something caused her to feel depressed when she should be happy, and when Prudhomme expressed a fear that she was tired and suggested he take her home, she accepted with alacrity.

She remained silent as their cab sped down tree-lined avenues where street lights seemed strung like fat Chinese lanterns, the lacy branches of pepper trees silhouetted against them.

"I should discuss business with you," she offered as they crossed the bridge.

"Not tonight," begged Prudhomme "Can't we forget for these few hours that you are to be my employer?"

SOIL MOISTURE GAIN REPORTED

Conditions Improve Throughout Grain Belt, Crop Expert Finds.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, March 11—Farmers starting preparation of land for 1940 crops are finding moisture conditions in the main grain producing belt very spotted, according to analysis of precipitation statistics today.

Although moisture supplies have improved the last two months, surface and subsoil are not wet enough in many areas and above normal spring rains will be needed, to make up for the serious deficiency of last fall.

Subsoil moisture is most deficient west of the Mississippi from the Canadian border to the gulf. Topsoil moisture, which will permit preparation of fields for seeding, is normal or nearly normal in most sections except the spring wheat states.

Expert Compiles Figures

Figures compiled by Nat Murray, crop expert, based on reports from observers in practically every county, showed that for the U. S. as a whole topsoil moisture average was 80.2 per cent of normal on March 1 compared with only 32.8 per cent last December 1. Subsoil reserve was 59.2 per cent of normal against 47.3 per cent three months earlier.

Topsoil moisture ranged from 85 to 98 per cent in soft winter wheat states like Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri and Kentucky. In Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas there has been a sharp improvement since Dec. 1, with the March 1 percentage ranging from 64 per cent in Nebraska to 90 in Texas compared with 16 to 38 three months earlier. In the Dakotas Murray's figures showed top soil moisture only 35 to 40 per cent, an improvement in South Dakota but a decline in North Dakota. Minnesota's average rose from 50 to 62.0, March 1 while Wisconsin's declined from 80 to 61. Iowa's rose from 40 to 75.

Moisture Increases

Moisture in the subsoil was judged from 67 to 83 per cent of normal in the soft wheat zone, an improvement since December 1, but the Dakotas had about 20 per cent of normal, compared with 31 and 20 on Dec. 1 for North and South Dakota respectively. Nebraska had 24 per cent, a 9 point improvement in 3 months but Minnesota's average fell from 50 to 43 and Wisconsin's from 71 to 54 Improvement in Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas amounted to 11 to 23 points, with averages ranging from 45 per cent for Kansas to 52 for Texas.

B. W. Snow's figures on actual precipitation showed that in the western 31 counties of Kansas having a planted wheat area of 4,400,000 acres February moisture averaged only 67 per cent of normal. In the central third 35 counties, with an average of 8,700,000 acres, precipitation was 13 per cent in excess of normal. For the 8 months since June 30, however, the western counties have received only 47 per cent of normal precipitation while central counties have had 87 per cent of normal.

GARNER AWAITS VOTERS' WORD

Vice President Will Watch Results of Primaries in Four States.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 11—Vice President Garner has laid all his cards on the table for the presidential primaries, friends said today, and now will be content to sit back and watch results.

Garner, a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, has entered the April primaries in Illinois and Wisconsin and the Oregon and California races in May.

He approved a slate of California delegates pledged to him Saturday night, telegraphing his California leaders that his candidacy "is in the hands of the people" for decision either at the Democratic convention or at the November election.

Some of Garner's associates interpreted the statement as an indirect suggestion that President Roosevelt, if he wants a third term, also should give the people a chance to vote directly on his candidacy in the primaries.

Even though the President has given no indication as to whether he will run again, delegates pledged to Mr. Roosevelt will be running against the Garner ticket in most primaries where the vice president is entered.

Immediate political interest centered on New Hampshire, where the first 1940 presidential primary will be held tomorrow.

The bulk of a slate pledged to Mr. Roosevelt was unopposed on the Democratic ticket.

Most of the Republican candidates are unpledged but are expected to support the "favorite son" candidacy of Senator Bridges, Republican of New Hampshire. One candidate for a district delegate's post is pledged to Thomas E. Dewey, although the latter asked him to withdraw.

Senate Democrats in touch with Postmaster General Farley reported meanwhile, that he had little to say regarding his candidacy for the presidential nomination.

One well-advised senator declared.

"Farley is now trying to make up his mind whether to go it alone or to wait on Roosevelt."

A week-end political development was the announcement by Chairman John Hamilton that the Republican national committee would not issue a party convention book, calling the books a "subterfuge" for getting around the corrupt practices act.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Chief Orders Guards To Take Captive Away and Then Release Him.

I DID not have a long vigil beside Edith Fairfax's bed. It was but a few minutes before the convulsive clasp of her hands relaxed, and I saw that she was sound asleep.

Working with infinite pains, I drew away my hands without disturbing her and tiptoed out of the room, putting on the door a homemade "Do not disturb" sign. Then I hurried to the window seat outside my father's door where Lillian and I had left our men.

I found Lillian with them, and raised my eyebrows in query as I gestured toward my father's door.

"Not a thing doing so far," Harry Underwood said. "We hear their voices occasionally, otherwise we might be tempted to barge in. But they're evidently at a dead-lock."

Lillian drew me down beside her and said "Edith?" questioningly.

"Asleep, finally, after some hot milk and a sedative," I said, and Lillian gave a short laugh that sounded more like a snort.

"You are the forgivingest thing," she said with grudging admiration, and Dicky struck in vehemently.

"Too darn forgiving if you ask me," he said. "You're worn to a frazzle as it is. I'll not have you nursing that neurotic."

"I'm not," I said, but any wife can understand how warm my heart was at his championship of me against the woman who had tried so hard to win him.

"Don't tell me—" Dickq began, evidently bent on continuing the argument, but to my great relief the bell in my father's room sounded an insistent peal, and he sprang at once to answer it, while the rest of us sat tensed, ready for whatever my father might wish.

He came back almost at once and spoke to Harry.

"The Chief wants two guards, and he says you are all to come in now."

"I'll have the guards here in a jiffy," Harry Underwood said, and Lillian and I came into my father's room in response to Dicky's beckoning hand.

We found him lying back in his chair, near exhaustion from his interview. Across the room from him the man whom I had seen creeping through the underbrush was sullenly slumped on a chair, to which he was tied by a strong rope, with a strand running up to his handcuffs and another to the irons shackling his ankles. The men "hobbling" him had taken no chances on his getting out of that chair and getting near my father, I told myself with grim satisfaction.

My father did not turn his head, and his eyes were fixed upon the opposite wall. But his voice was incisive.

"Look over this man carefully," he said. "I want you to recognize him if you see him again."

We obeyed him while the shackled man twisted his face in a futile attempt to disguise his facial lines. Then Harry came back with the guards, and after my father asked him to look at the man, he signaled the guards to come close to him.

Memory Test

"Take this man to the Montauk highway," he directed, "and set him down about midway between Southampton and Easthampton. Take his shackles off before you leave here, and from the moment you leave this room until you release him keep him as inconspicuous as you can."

He turned to the man.

"You are sure you can remember everything I have said to you, and what you are to say and do?" he asked, and there was that in his voice which said that the man would better remember every slightest detail of my father's instructions if he knew what was good for him.

"I remember," the man returned sullenly.

"Very good," my father commended. Then his voice was suddenly filled with a great weariness.

"Take him away," he said, and closed his eyes as if he could no longer bear the sight of the shackled man.

Margaret Speaks, in Concert Here This Week, Began As Church Singer

Start of Famous Ohio Woman's Career Was at Age of 3 in Michigan.

Margaret Speaks, Columbus born lyric soprano and concert and radio singer who will appear as a guest singer on the Marion Civic orchestra's program Thursday night at the Palace theater, has sung in churches all her life. She knows almost every hymn and oratorio in the whole ecclesiastical repertoire, regardless of creed.

Her church career began at the age of three when she appeared as soloist in a Methodist church entertainment. Since that day she has sung in the sanctuaries of a dozen different denominations.

Through her early days Miss Speaks sang in church entertainments and for congregations which gave her no fees. At the age of 15 she took her first regular "church job." This was in Topinabee, Mich., 60 miles from Ostego Lake, where the singer stayed several summers in her youth. "Church singing has been an important part of my career," says Miss Speaks. "I think, perhaps, every young singer should go in for it."

Selects Her Field

Having decided once and for all the radio and band concert was her forte, the singer concentrated all her store of determination in that direction. For more than five years she has been broadcasting the "Voice of Firestone" program at NBC in New York and thrilling millions of listeners with the theme song "In a Garden," and her solo numbers.

Miss Speaks was with the "Humming Birds," the first girls' trio to do the instrumental sounds in vocal harmony, for four years with Whispering Jack Smith, was in a a mixed quartet and with other radio groups.

Along with radio work Miss Speaks has been active in the concert field. She has sung in the White House and in almost every state in the Union and in capitals of Europe. She is a favorite in college towns, or any center where there is cultured appreciation of artistry in classical music. She has appeared with numerous leading symphony orchestras. Not so long ago she sang in Columbus at the Kappa national assembly and also opened the Women's Music club series.

No Idle Hours

The young radio star's time is well filled. There are lessons with Miss Helen Chase, with whom she has worked since her arrival in New York more than 12 years ago, she must s day at least with her sec correspondence and fa there are sessions with r hair dressers, contourier week's broadcast to pre and work with her acc on the repertoire for the appearances. When she c away from this continuo of hard work at the she goes to her small Westchester county wi cooks, swims, walks, ska and gardens.

Treating the Aged

Do medicines act differently in old people?

We must be as careful in giving medicine to the aged as to the young. Old people cannot use some of the medicines that are used in adult life at all, in others the dosage must be changed.

In general, the old do not respond well to medication. The drugs are absorbed slowly and what is called "cumulative action" is common.

Treacherous drugs in the aged are the sedatives. Preparations such as the barbiturates may work very well in a person of adult life and give a quiet and comforting night's sleep, yet the same dose in an elderly person may cause nervous excitement and mental confusion lasting for many hours.

Drugs which act on the heart do not always give the results after 60 that occur at 30. In fact, it is wise not to try to cure old people too fast. Their symptoms or diseases have been with them a long time and may be doing them no special acute harm. Abrupt changes in diet and habits are especially to be avoided. I have seen many a case of diabetes in the aged tackled by an enthusiastic practitioner with an entire change in the diet that so upset the patient as to throw him into an actually dangerous condition. A curious corollary of this is that the aged stand surgery very well. As the professor of medicine at the University of Pennsylvania says, "Doctors will temporize, will overmedicate, but from faulty timidity deprive an aged patient of a chance at surgical cure."

Central and "Jinx" Defeat Harding in Finals, 41-3

Prexies Never in Lead As Columbus Wins Spot in State Tourney; Roberts Sinks 15 Points.

By CHARLES POSTETTLER
Marion Star Sports Editor

MARION HARDING'S basketball team followed in the footsteps of five predecessors, dropping a 41-32 decision to Columbus Central, in the title-deciding game of the district Class A tournament at Delaware Saturday night.

Unable to shake off an old tournament jinx that has labeled them "often a finalist but never a champion," the Presidents saw their hopes of breaking the bug-a-boo fade before Central's fast-stepping offense.

Twice in the first period Marion managed to hold their metropolitan foes to a deadlock, but they were never again within convenient distance of overhauling the champions. Central, truly a "dark horse" entry, sported a powerhouse offense built around Forwards Kamer and Warner, who stripped the nets for 13 points apiece.

Led All the Way

Central was in front, 12-10, at the quarter, 23-17 at intermission and 31-21 going into the final. Except for the brilliant work of Johnny Roberts, who collected 15 points for the locals, Marion displayed little of the aggressiveness that carried the team into the finals.

Marion was dogged by all manner of tough luck from the very start of the tournament. The Presidents barely managed to edge Columbus North, a team which they shellacked in mid-season, to get by the opener. After disposing of Grove City in easy fashion the Bobycrmen had to go into a "sudden death" overtime period to stop Columbus Aquinas in the semi-finals.

The defeat of Aquinas was engineered despite the loss of Dale Hudson, Harding's top scorer during the league season. Hudson remained on the bench because of an infected foot and the injury from which he suffered was just another of the contributing causes to Harding's downfall.

Take Early Lead

Cooper and Warner pitched free throws to open Central scoring and Hedge's follow-up for Marion evened the count at 2-up. Warner's hook shot was equalled by Roberts' follow-up try and the count stood 4-all with three minutes played. Central went into a lead that held to the finish on Garland's lay-up and a foul by Clark. Roberts' brace of charity tosses cut the Central advantage to 7-6. Kamer registered a hook shot from the corner and Roberts retaliated by counting as he dribbled across the court beneath the hoop. Warner pitched another goal for Central and again Roberts kept the locals in the race, this time with a hook from the side. Garland's foul closed first period scoring with Central on top 12-10.

Kamer cashed in on a long heave and then added a single pointer. Clark hoisted a fielder from within the circle and Central led, 17-10. A lay-up try by Roberts was cancelled when Clark hit the net on a charity toss and then zipped in another from mid-court. Central's lead was cut to five points on Reichardt's long try and a foul by Roberts. In the closing 90 seconds, Warner connected for a foul and Garland added a goal, while Roberts countered with a hook-shot at close range. Central led, 23-17 at the half.

Second Half

Marion was content with four points, all from the free throw lane in the third, registered by Reichardt, Johnson, Houpt and Irvine. Meanwhile Central pushed its advantage to 31-21, by counting four goals. Warner and Kamer each netted a brace of action shots.

First score in the fourth period came at the two-minute mark when Garland followed-up a missed free throw to increase Central's lead to 33-21. The Columbus team rode along triumphantly, taking more time in working the ball through Harding's defense. The Presidents attempted to rush their opponents over the entire court but to no avail. Irvine connected on a long shot and Reichardt counted a lay-up as the duel moved into the final stages with Marion trailing, 34-27.

Kamer sank a pair of fielders, on a hook shot from the side and a dribble-in try before Warner added a free throw to send the totals to 39-27 with only 1:30 remaining. Houpt sank an action shot for Marion, but Central countered with three points on Inacobucci's free throw and a pair of them by Warner. In the same split-second with the game-ending gun Roberts unloosed a long shot that zipped into the net and made the final tally, 42-31.

Aquinas Beats South

National Loop's Castoffs Doing Okay

By The Associated Press

The National league has nothing to be ashamed of, on the basis of last season's averages, in all the talk about its American league "castoffs," because the ex-American league players didn't fare so well in the senior circuit.

Including all players who participated in 10 or more games during the season, here's how the "castoffs" of both leagues fared in 1939:

1. Former National leaguers compiled a composite batting average of .294 in the American league (999 hits in 3,397 times at bat).

2. Ex-American leaguers, in composite, hit for a modest .256 in the National (1,488 hits in 5,808 times at bat).

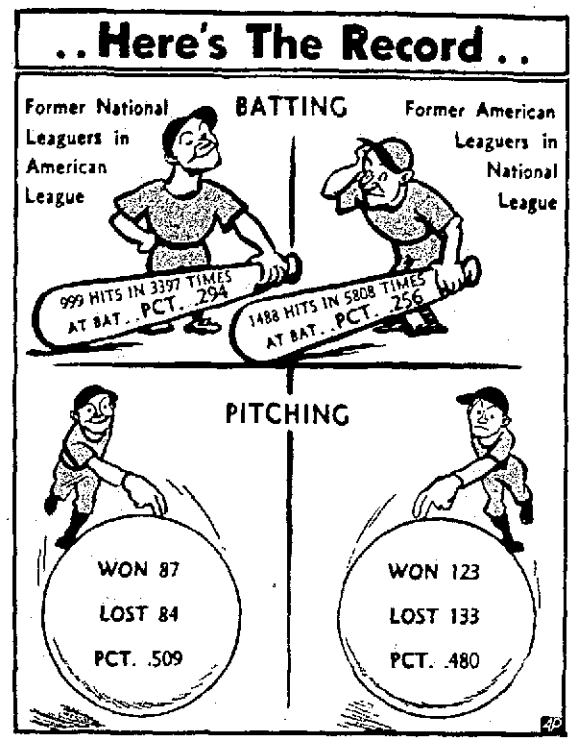
3. Former National league pitchers won 87 games and lost 84 in the American for a .509 percentage.

4. Ex-American league pitchers won 123 but lost 133 games in the National for a percentage of .480.

5. However, the former American league hurlers salvaged some honor. Their composite earned run average per nine-inning game in the National was only 3.94 (1,049 earned runs in 2,395 innings pitched), as compared with a composite average of 4.57 (750 earned runs in 1,476 innings) for ex-National league flingers performing in the American.

In order to be strictly fair, the work of every man who formerly played in the rival league—if he got into any games there at all—was included in this compilation.

The National league, as usual, tried out a lot more ex-American leaguers than vice-versa—in fact, twice as many. The Brooklyn Dodgers alone accounted for 14.



The figures may seem surprising, but not when you recall that George McQuinn, for instance, batted .316 for the St. Louis Browns, although he couldn't hit his weight with the Cincinnati Reds a few years ago. And that such American league stars as Joe Cronin, Mike Kreevich, Buck Newsom and Emil Leonard fizzled in earlier trials in the elder circuit.

Irish Lose 40-29 in Semi-Final; Union County Boys in State Meet.

MARION ST. MARY bowed to Amanda, 40-29, in a semi-final encounter of the Class B district tournament at Westerville Saturday afternoon.

Amanda went on to win the championship by defeating Marysville, 31-25. The latter squad had qualified for the finals with a 26-24 overtime victory against Worthington.

The new champions succeed Upper Arlington as the district crownwearers and along with Marysville will enter the state meet this week.

The Marion Parochials put up a great battle for three periods against Amanda but collapsed in the final. The Saints trailed 25-23 at the start of the fourth but were unable to keep apace with their foes.

Schuler Top Scorer

Ted Schuler was the top local scorer, netting 14 points, while Wayne Hiatt garnered 11 for the opposition.

Two minutes of the first period elapsed before Schuler hit the net for the initial score. Terzo and McGinnis added fielders for the Saints, while Amanda was held to goals by Young and Clevenger and a free throw by Lutz. The Saints led, 6-5.

Terzo's foul increased Marion's lead to two points but the gap was closed when Hiatt cashed in on a pair of gift shots. Schuler duplicated with a brace of charity tosses and the lead held until the last three minutes when Christy's side-court heave tied the count, 9-9. The work of Hiatt, who tallied on a pair of pivot shots, helped Amanda to a 16-13 lead at intermission.

Nip and Tuck

St. Mary staged a third period comeback that knotted the score three times, at 16-16, 18-18 and 23-23. In the seconds before the quarter closed Hiatt counted the goal that gave Amanda a 25-23 lead.

Amanda held the Saints pointless in the first three minutes and ran the lead to 31-23. Young clinched the issue with three fielders late in the period.

YOUTH HURT IN AUTO CRASH NEAR BUCYRUS

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, March 11 — One injury was reported in two automobile mishaps investigated by the sheriff's office Saturday.

Richard Howell, 19, Bucyrus, was treated at City hospital for lacerations of the face and hands suffered when he was thrown through the windshield of the car in which he was riding with Adam Gottfried, five miles west of Bucyrus on route 182.

The accident occurred when the Gottfried car crashed into a parked truck belonging to Dallas Musser of Osceola. Musser had stopped on the side of the highway to talk to Dale Dobbins, whose car was parked on the other side of the highway. Lights from the Dobbins car blinded Gottfried, he said.

More than 100,000 old-fashioned stereopticon cards, which give a third dimensional view of pictures, are in use in schools of the United States.

MOST LEADERS LAGGING BEHIND

Aircrafts and Specialties Only Issues To Show Much Strength.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 11—Quiet strength among aircrafts and specialties was offset by lagging tendencies of most leaders in today's stock market.

Hopes that an end of the industrial treat was in sight, together with brightening prospects for individual companies, helped attract selective support, brokers said.

Bonds and commodities were a shade irregular, as were the principal foreign securities markets. Stocks pushed up at Copenhagen on reports peace was in the offing.

Packard was the fastest mover on the home front, stepping above 4 to a new 1940 top. New York Tractions also were lively.

Sluggish were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Westinghouse, Du Pont, Goodyear and Anaconda.

Packard was given another run in wake of the announcement the company had received a navy order for some $2,000,000 of new "super-marine" engines to power speedy surface torpedo boats.

PROSPECTS OF PEACE AFFECT WHEAT PRICE

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, March 11.—Unofficial and unconfirmed reports of a Russo-Finnish settlement gave the wheat market a mild case of nervousness today, with prices fluctuating rapidly at times over a range of 2 cents.

Gains of a cent or more were recorded at one stage but there were frequent dips of almost a cent below Saturday's closing level and final prices were only fractionally higher than the previous finish. Pessimistic crop reports from the domestic southwest accounted for most of the market's strength.

Wheat closed unchanged to ½ higher compared with Saturday's finish, May $1.04⅛-⅜, July $1.02⅝-¾; corn unchanged to ¼ lower, May 56⅝, July 57⅝-11; oats ¼ off to ⅝ up.

Cash wheat was unchanged to ¼ higher; basis steady; shipping sales 3,000 bushels; receipts 12 cars; corn unchanged to ¼ lower; basis steady to shade easier; receipts 105 cars; shipping sales 13,000 bushels; booked to arrive 52,000 bushels; oats unchanged to 1 cent lower.

Finland Becomes Pawn in European Power Struggle

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

One point stands out impressively if crudely among the complications of the Russo-Finnish peace move—that little Finland's plight is largely incidental in the maneuvering of the powers for position in the greater crisis of the war between Germany and the Anglo-French allies.

That may seem like a cynical viewpoint, but we can't get at the truth by side-stepping facts.

The Finns are by no means masters of their own fate. That is being determined for them mainly by the fall of the cards from the hands of Nazi Germany and the allies.

The Russo-Finnish situation is of vast strategic importance in the European upheaval proper. The allies are widely credited with wanting this Baltic war continued, Hitler wants it terminated—for reasons explained later.

Decision for Finland

Finland is faced with a decision as to whether to proceed with the fight or accept territorial losses which at best will be hateful to her.

Let's take a quick glance at the positions of the other nations immediately concerned:

Russia: The Reds would like to get the war over with for fear of Anglo-French intervention. Germany also is putting pressure on the Bolshevists to end the conflict.

Anglo-French allies: As already stated, they appear anxious for the war to continue. They have sent some help to Finland, and might have sent the greater assistance needed excepting for the refusal of neutral Sweden to allow organized allied troops to pass through her territory. The Anglo-French reasons for wanting continuance of the war are several:

1. They wish to open up a new battle front in the Baltic area so that they can strike at Hitler from the north.

2. They want to keep Russia engaged so that the Reds can't assist Germany with supplies.

3. They would like to defeat the Bolshevists at the same time as Germany, so as to remove the threat of Communist expansion westward in Europe, down through the Balkans, and into the Near East and India.

4. Abandonment of Finland to the mercies of the Reds would have a bad effect on the small European neutrals, who might swing toward Hitler. Already the Balkans are very nervous.

Germany: Herr Hitler naturally wishes to prevent the establishment of a new allied front in the Baltic area—a grave threat to him. He wants to retard Russia so as to get badly needed supplies from that country.

And when all's said and done, he dislikes as much as anyone else to see the spread of the Bolshevist influence westward. That was something he didn't figure on when he signed up with the Reds.

What Has Your Experience Been in Handling 18 Billions in Gold?

By LLOYD LEHRBAS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON, March 11—What would you do with $18,187,873,598.61 in gold?

Federal government officials, senators, representatives and some economists, fearful that the United State will accumulate all, or most, of the world's gold and "be stuck" with it, are pondering on what to do with that huge gold hoard.

Adolf A. Berle Jr., assistant secretary of state, speaking at Yale university, suggested that the United States might be willing to make a gift of some gold to assist in the reconstruction of Europe after the war.

"It seems fantastic today," Berle said, "to suggest handing over some of our accumulated gold as a free gift to reestablish international currency, to let other nations set their houses in order and thereby reestablish trade and normal life. But this may not seem nearly as fantastic a few years hence."

Berle's suggestion is only one. Elsewhere have sprung up these proposals, plans and schemes:

1. Purchase of foreign-owned islands off the American coasts for defense purposes.

2. Purchase of foreign territories on the American continent as sources of rubber and other needed raw materials.

3. Distribution of all, or a large portion, of the gold hoard in old age or other pensions.

4. Purchase of surplus American commodities for free distribution to the unemployed.

5. Reduction of the public debt.

6. Purchase of large amounts of tin, manganese, chrome, nickel and other strategic materials to insure sufficient stocks in case of war.

7. Expansion of the currency by issuing a larger volume of paper money backed by the buried gold.

8. Loans to "solvent" foreign countries to support their monetary system and enable them to continue trading with the United States after the war.

Some economists believe that, even if no deliberate action to reduce the gold hoard is taken, the amount held may diminish after the war. The gold piling up here, they explain, comes:

1. From the favorable balance of trade resulting from the fact that the United States now exports more than it imports. When the war ends this trend might be reversed.

2. From war-frightened nations seeking a safe place for their treasure. It is expected that at least some of that gold will be recalled in peacetime.

E. A. Goldenweiser, research director of the federal reserve board, and one of the nation's outstanding gold experts, sums up the situation as one which must depend, for its eventual solution, on restoration of world trade and monetary stability after the war is over.

Couple Adopts Delaware County "Mystery Baby"

By The Associated Press

DELAWARE, O., March 11—Delaware county's mystery baby had her second name within a week today—and a permanent home.

The little girl, abandoned near a filling station northeast of Delaware during the storm of a week ago Saturday night, was adopted and taken home Saturday by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Smith, modestly situated young couple. They named her Ivalou Grace.

Nurses at the Jane M Cass hospital had called the baby Ethyl," because she was found near the gasoline station of Zeke Robinson. Doctors said the child was in perfect health and then about days old.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith are both under 25. He drives a rural tea and grocery truck. They had wanted a child for some time, Sheriff M. F. Finney said, and Friday qualified in probate court for legal adoption.

More than 20 couples from Columbus, Delaware, Marysville and Lancaster had expressed a desire to adopt the baby but Mr. and Mrs. Smith were the first to sign a petition.

With the adoption papers signed, the baby was taken from the hospital to her new home early Saturday afternoon.

When Ivalou Grace was found she was wrapped in cotton in a tissue-filled market basket covered by wrapping paper.

The sheriff said the only clue to the baby's identity—a license plate observed near the abandonment scene the night of March 2—had proved useless. The license plates apparently had been issued at Galion, but a check with doctors there established that none had delivered the child.

Doctors at Cave hospital said the child's condition indicated the mother had good attention at the time of delivery.

The Stars Say—

For Tuesday, March 12

A DIFFICULT day is presaged from the strongly adverse planetary aspects. There are likely to be tenacious obstacles and trial that much tact and diplomacy to remove. The stubborn opposition seems to have its source in deep roots probably in connection with groups or organized bodies with whom much discrimination should be exercised.

Those whose birthday it is may have to draw on a reserve fund of patience fortitude and prudence during the year in order to sidestep or vanquish obstinate and difficult situations. Many obstacles and frustrating circumstances arise probably from old [illegible] and must be overcome.

A child born on this day will be fairly clever and deep subtle and should have a character that would enable it to transcend [illegible] circumstances by prudence clear thinking and strategy.
